

Abstract of the Disclosure:

Method, computer program product, programmed data medium, and computer system searches the source code of a computer program initially for infringements of prescribed consistency, syntax, grammar, and lexical rules. For an infringement of a prescribed rule, a possible correction is calculated. The source code of the computer program is then automatically or interactively changed in accordance with the calculated correction. Alternatively, it is possible to define infringements that are automatically ignored during analysis.

LDP/tk